NATICK — Two of three men charged in connection with an armed holdup at the First National Bank of Natick branch in a shopping plaza a week ago were held without bail for the Middlesex County Grand Jury Thursday.

A third man, also charged in the $12,000 robbery, was continued on bail until today when Judge Thomas F. Quinn resumes the probable cause hearing.

Held without bail until today, when decisions on additional charges against them will be made, are Robert F. Guarante, 28, of Saratoga st., East Boston, and Thomas J. Parry, 30, of Erie, Pa.

Probable cause against both was found on a charge of armed robbery while masked.

Judge Quinn refused to release them on bail overnight despite the pleas of counsel that not to do so was a violation of their rights.

The third defendant, John A. Michaelson, 32, of Gore rd., Revere, is charged with armed robbery and conspiracy. Judge Quinn reserved a decision in his case following argument from Atty. John F. Zamparelli that an affidavit to the court for a search warrant was improperly drawn up.

Sixteen witnesses were sworn in and 12 called during the seven-hour session which was continued at 5:30 p.m.

They included police, bank personnel and others who saw the alleged robbers flee the bank scene at Rtes. 9 and 27.

At least seven witnesses during testimony pointed out either Guarante or Parry as two of the four men police claim robbed the bank.

No one identified Michaelson, and the fourth man is still sought.

Mrs. Joseph Motta, 25, of Pilgrim road, Wellesley, said Parry was the man who forced his way into her car and ordered her to get him out of the area. Mrs. Motta was riding with her year-old son.

Mrs. Dennis L. Reagan of Lake Shore road, Natick said Guarante was the man who entered her house and remained for nearly an hour before surrendering. Mrs. Reagan was alone with her infant son who is one month old today.

In a surprise move, Zamparelli said he will place his client, Michaelson, on the witness stand today. He added that he will attempt to have Parry, represented by Atty. John Sullivan of Natick, also called to the stand.

Guarante is represented by Atty. Victor J. Garo.

Both Parry and Guarante were taken to the Billerica jail overnight and will be returned for court appearance this morning.
